A Small Business Week salute to all our local businesses

Positive response for post office petition

A petition containing 405 signatures and expressing the community's concern over the shortage of mail boxes and the subsequent long lineups to receive general delivery mail was presented to representatives of Canada Post at last week's meeting of Elk Point Town Council.

Mayor Ed Buck told the Canada Post officials that the Town has been pursuing this problem for some years, and had first brought the matter to Canada Post's attention during the oil boom of the 1980s. With the recent surge in oil activity, the problem has become more acute than ever.

Bill Kobitowich and Pat Coyle, representing Canada Post, offered some hope that the post office will be expanded in the future, but said that temporary measures could be taken in the meantime to shorten lineups. If people are given a box number, and the mail is sorted into these boxes, post office staff would be able to give out the mail much more quickly, without sorting through the items in the current alphabetical boxes each time. This would also pave the way for the establishment of 24-hour access boxes in the community.

Kobitowich told Council and the petitioners that "where the dollars fall determines what will happen. We don't want to wait for that. At least we can shorten the lineups... and work with the community to solve the problem."

Another delegation visited Council to discuss the future of the present Catholic church. A potential purchaser wants to turn the structure into an antique store, but an application to change the zoning of the property for this use was turned down by the Municipal Planning Commission. After discussion with the Church Board and the purchaser, Council decided to give first reading to a clause approving discretionary use of the building as an antique store, with the only change to the exterior of the building to be the addition of washroom facilities.

A local resident who is having problems accessing her driveway with a recreational vehicle since her street was paved also visited Council to voice her concerns. The matter was referred to the Public Works department.

Garbage pickup will once again move out of the alleys and onto the street for some local residents this winter, in the same areas as last year. It was suggested that these areas could be left on front pickup year round, and this will be given some thought. Town manager Myron Goyan is currently working on a new garbage bylaw.

Halloween hours have once again been set from 4:00 to 7:00 p.m. on Friday, October 31.

An invitation to a conference sponsored by the Wild Rose Foundation, aimed at showing volunteer groups where to access funds, sparked discussion about what the Town should support. The mayor feels that the towns of Elk Point and St. Paul, along with the County of St. Paul, should sit down and decide what they are supporting, what the three jurisdictions have in common and how costs could be shared. Buck feels Elk Point is unique in that all the public facilities are owned by volunteer groups instead of by the Town. The volunteers come from both the town and the surrounding area, and Buck feels the outside areas need to pay their share to keep the facilities going.

PETITION FOR IMPROVED POSTAL SERVICE -- Dale Litke (right) presents a 405-signature petition to Bill Kobitowich and Pat Coyle of Canada Post, asking for improvements in Elk Point's postal service.

Benoit questioned on pension future

Changes in Canada's pension plan and old age security were foremost in the minds of those attending last Friday's visit to Elk Point by Member of Parliament Leon Benoit.

Government plans to increase CPP premiums and tax pension benefits early in the new century are a concern to local seniors, although Benoit says there will not be a "dramatic reduction to most people," except to those with with other incomes in excess of $35,000 a year over and above their old age security. "The others will still get their money out of the CPP, but with a token reduction." Claw-backs announced in the 1996 federal budget will take up to half of the CPP for people whose non-OAS income is over the base amount, which will drop from the present $53,215.

CPP premiums will be virtually doubled, and Benoit said that "frankly, I don't think young people will do it."

He feels the country needs to move to a private pension plan that will protect the pension the older generation have paid toward over the years without adversely affecting the young people. The plan he suggests would also give surviving spouses a full payout rather than the minimal death benefit now provided, and would provide a substantial capital pool for investment.

As it is, Benoit feels "the CPP is not sustainable. There are seven working people for each retired person now, and there will be two per retired person once the baby boomers hit pension age."

Gas exports, early release of prisoners, marijuana and gun laws, as well as national unity, were also discussed at the meeting. Benoit says the Calgary accord "established that all people would be treated a equals. It didn't accomplish much, but it's a start." He feels it establishes an equality of all people and provinces and "is at least putting a process in place" to redistribute power across the nation.

Time to start planning for Extravaganza

With just under two months to go before their annual Christmas Extravaganza, Elk Point Chamber of Commerce set the date at last week's meeting for their first in a series of planning meetings for the big night of shopping, fun and prizes. Representatives of the businesses who take part in the event each year will meet Wednesday, October 29 at 8 a.m. to start getting ready for the Extravaganza, which this year has been set for Friday, December 12.

The Chamber had their first quorum since the summer break at last week's meeting, and also had a special guest on hand. Marvin Bragg, Regional Manager of the Alberta Treasury Branch, explained a number of changes in the ATB which have been underway for the past 18 months, and which will continue for another two years. A government study resulted in the appointment of a board of directors, with one director for each of 13 regions across Alberta. Elk Point is one of 13 banks in the east region, and is represented on the board by Ray Nelson, Lloydminster. The regional office, in Vegreville, "brings the head office closer to the customers," Bragg said, adding that he works closely with the branch managers. A new Treasury Act was proclaimed October 8 by the Lieutenant Governor, making the Treasury Branch a crown corporation.

Bragg said Treasury Branch's strength has been in rural Alberta since it was formed in 1938, and will continue to be. "We're going to be around for a long time yet."

Another busy week at F. G. Miller. The Home Economics department received 12 new sewing machines. New projects have been started that are keeping them busy. The Grade 8 option class has made Care Bears to give to the elderly at the Extended Care in Elk Point Health Centre.

Volleyball victory

Both Senior High Volleyball teams went to Saddle Lake on October 8. There they played teams from St. Paul and Saddle Lake. The boys won three games and lost one. They have been playing without their captain due to injury. They are 6-2 in league play so far, but Mr. Kiss says that there is still lots to do. The girls came away with one win and three losses, but they know that if they play as a team, they can compete with anyone in the league.

Bells are ringing

The new bell system is fully underway. So far it is a huge success in bringing students to class on time. The first bell rings which tells students that is time to go to class. The second bell, which has a different sound, tells students that they are now late for class. We hope that in a short time, all students will be in class by that bell.

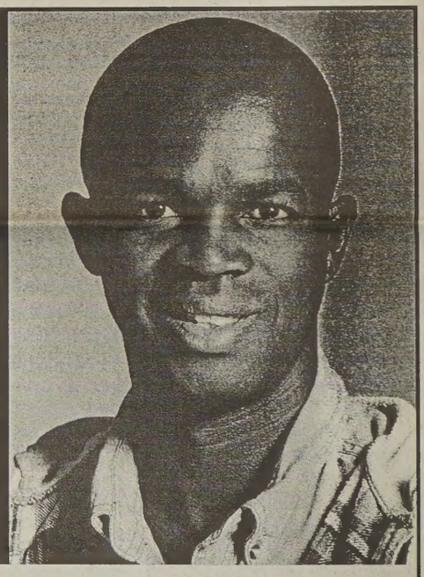
Last year, more than 26,500 injured workers successfully returned to their pre-accident jobs.



Workers in most industries are insured for work-related injuries and illnesses by the WCB. Ask your employer or the WCB if you are covered.

If you are injured at work, here's how you can help make your return to work successful:

- If necessary, seek medical help.
- Report your injury immediately to your employer and the WCB.
- Stay in touch with your employer and WCB case worker.
- Work with your employer, the WCB and health care providers to develop an appropriate return to work plan.

Eleven suggestions for coping with stress

By Deanna Easthope
FCSS Director

Our daily living can bring about a "stress" reaction in many of us. Expectations, demands, commitments, accidents, financial trouble, job problem, family relations, etc. can all lead to tension and anxiety. Then, if tension and anxiety occurs over a period of time without release, the big word "stress" becomes a part of our daily living. We are frazzled and on edge — unable to reason things out or control our feelings.

Remember you are the person who knows what is best for you. On matters of health, your physician is the best guide. However, here are some helpful tips that I found published by the Canadian Mental Health Association.

1. Talk it out. Talking help to relieve strain and enables you to see the problem more clearly.

2. Escape for a while. It is OK to lose yourself in a book or take a drive in the country. But be prepared to come back and deal with the problem when you're more composed.

3. Work off your anger. While anger may give you a temporary sense of righteousness, or even power, it will probably leave you feeling foolish. Do something constructive with that pent-up energy — clean out the garage, take a long walk — etc. A day or two later you'll be better prepared to deal with the problem.

4. Give in occasionally. If you find yourself getting into frequent quarrels remember that frustrated children behave the same way. Stand your ground, but do it calmly and remember that you could be wrong.

5. Do something for others. If you find that you're worrying about yourself all the time, try doing something for somebody else. You will have a good feeling.

6. Take one thing at a time. To work your way out of stress, take a few of the most urgent tasks and pitch into them. Leave everything else aside. Once you've cleared a few away, the others won't seem such a "horrible mess" and the balance of the work will go more easily.

7. Shun the "superman" role. Some people expect too much of themselves. Decide what you do well and put your major effort in this direction.

8. Go easy with your criticism. Expecting too much of others can lead to feelings of frustration and disappointment.

9. Give the other fellow a break. People under emotional tension often feel they have to "get there first" — to edge out the other person. It can be something as common as highway driving: "the impatient driver."

10. Make yourself "available." Many of us have the feeling that we are being left out, slighted, neglected, rejected. Often we just imagine other people feel this way about us. They may be waiting for us to make the first move.

11. Schedule your recreation. Some people drive themselves so hard that they allow themselves almost no time for recreation — an essential for good physical and mental health. Set aside definite hours for a hobby or sport that will absorb you completely. A time to forget about work and worries.

The above 11 points all made sense to me. After all, each one of us is an important, valuable person and we need to look after ourselves. Stress can change the better part o us, so to help us do something about it ourselves, these 11 points made sense. Take care, everyone.

FOSTER CARE

Discover Foster Care

Alberta Family and Social Services is looking for foster parents in the St. Paul area to open their hearts and homes to children in need.

In situations when a family is facing difficulties, foster parents provide full-time, temporary care for children who cannot remain in their homes. Fostering is a unique opportunity with long-lasting rewards. Helping children and teens can also be a challenging task and Alberta Family and Social Services and Alberta Foster Parents Association provide support to foster parents through resources and guidance.

All foster parent applicants are carefully screened and require mandatory pre-service training.

Small Business Week

It's Small Business Week, time to salute the stores and services that during the other 51 weeks of the year, we mostly just take for granted.

Small businesses have been with our communities ever since the first settlers arrived. It took only a short time before some enterprising individual set up a store to serve the needs of the families who were busy clearing land and building homes and farms. Before long there was a blacksmith, and then a hotel, a livery barn, and so on — eventually a whole down town, all consisting of small businesses.

Progress has brought big business, such as the oil companies, among us. But large as they are, they still need small businesses to help them do their job. Small businesses that provide materials, services and manpower to the oil industry are flourishing, and some that started out as very small businesses have now jumped over the line to the big business sector.

That is a phenomenon that probably holds true for most big business. Undoubtedly, every one of those major oil companies started out way back when with one or two wells, and every big department store chain with a small store somewhere.

A big salute to all our small businesses. We appreciate you being there for us, and for the good service you provide. Keep up the good work!

Diabetes Awareness "Month" proclaimed

WHEREAS the Canadian Diabetes Association, a leading force in providing research funding, education and services to improve the quality of life for the 1.5 million Canadians with diabetes, and

WHEREAS the cure for diabetes is still unknown and the proceeds of this campaign will, in part, support the diabetes research in Alberta as well as education, service and advocacy toward promotion of the health of Canadians, and

WHEREAS diabetes is known as Canada's "Silent Epidemic;"

THEREFORE, I, Mayor Ed Buck, do proclaim October 15 to November 1 as in Elk Point and urge all to respond to the needs of the Canadian Diabetes Association.

Eighty years young

Octogenarian honored by her family and her community

Hazel Hannah celebrated her eightieth birthday on Saturday, October 11 with a gala gathering of family, friends and community members at the Seniors Recreation Centre. The guest of honor was eloquently introduced by her grandson, Danny Povaschuk, to start off the party.

Sid Holthe brought wishes on behalf of the Pioneer Circle Seniors, and said that Mrs. Hannah's tireless volunteer work is "appreciated here and throughout the community." She is involved with many groups, including Meals on Wheels, Red Cross, the Canada Day Committee and the Seniors, and is often found busy with community activities. Holthe also offered a timely poem which declared "I'm Not Old... Just Mature."

Entertainment was offered by a number of performers, many of whom Mrs. Hannah has enjoyed seeing at local jamborees. Arnie Price, who also served as MC, sang a number of old favorites, Homer Poitras played an antique fiddle and reminisced about long-ago dances in the Moose Mountain area, and Roy Scott accompanied the musicians with his mule bones, spoons and jig-dancing doll. Gwen Morris, Matilda Furgher and Debbie Lawrence added their songs, Walter Anderson offered fiddle music, Clarence Smith played both guitar and mandolin, and Guy Bouchard and Andy Sidora rounded out the list of artists, all of whom were much enjoyed by Mrs. Hannah and her guests.

Nutrition notes

Do you eat like a bear to get ready for winter?

By Shelley Miller-Hertes, RD
Elk Point Health Centre

Look at your lifestyle. Are you active or inactive? Do you eat balanced meals or grab fast foods from the convenience store? Do you eat when you're hungry or just because everyone else is eating?

With the shorter days of fall upon us, we often spend more time indoors and more time snacking. With added snacking often comes added pounds. By taking some measures now you can avoid those oh-so-common words, "I put on ten pounds this past winter," next spring.

First of all, cut the fat wherever you can. Avoid frying foods; skip the margarine on the toast; switch to 1% milk; put mustard on the sandwiches instead of mayonnaise' eliminate margarine on the vegetables; and skip the pastries, potato chips and nachos, have fresh fruit instead.

Cut the salt, use more herbs and spices. Try Mrs. Dash as a seasoning salt. It's a spice mixture that's pre-blended. Watch for the word "salt" (for example, garlic salt contains sodium, minced garlic does not).

Eat more fibre-rich foods like whole grain breads, high fibre cereal, dried peas, beans and lentils. These foods fill you up without a lot of calories. Fruits and vegetables are also good fillers.

Avoid sugars; they tend to satisfy you temporarily but an hour later you'll crave something else sweet. Stay away from chocolate, candies, doughnuts, cookies, cakes, ice cream and soft drinks. Try fruits and vegetables instead, they'll give you a little sweetness without the calories.

Drink "lots" of water. Ideally 6-8 cups per day. When you feel hungry have a glass of water first then if you are still hungry, have something to eat. This also works well at the dinner table. Try sipping water as you eat, it will slow down how fast you eat your meal. This gives your stomach time to tell your brain you're full. If you find it difficult to drink water, try diet soft drinks, mineral water, club soda, tea or coffee. Skip alcohol, it's packed with calories.

Having regular meal and snack times will help you avoid skipping meals. Often when you skip a meal, you'll make up for it later by eating more than you would if you'd had breakfast or lunch. Plan your meals ahead so you aren't tempted to grab a high calorie item. For example, take a fresh fruit with you to work for coffee break then the high calorie doughnuts won't tempt you.

These are just a few examples of how you can resist the temptation to overeat this winter.

Good luck!

What's news at the library?

Believe it or not.... still more new books!

By Michele Duczek
Librarian

I'm back after a week spent in the wilds of Saskatchewan. I attended my grandparents' 60th wedding anniversary with the rest of my relatives, some of which I hadn't seen for ten years. For those of you who prayed for snow in Regina as I requested, thank you. It rained for two solid days. I'm off to St. Paul later this week for the Northern Lights Library Conference. This means there will be no Storytime on October 24. Storytime returns just in time for our annual Halloween party.

I would like to take this opportunity to thank those who filled in for me while I was away. Without their support I wouldn't be able to take a holiday without closing the library.

Believe it or not, we have more new books (although I think I've blown the book budget for this year). Here's the latest in non-fiction:

On the eve of his thirtieth birthday, Stephen O'Shea set out to walk the trenches of the Western Front. Back to the Front: An Accidental Historian Walks the Trenches of World War I is his account of that 750 km trek, the places he went, the people he met. (By the time you read this I should have finished with this book and returned it to the library.)

And in children's fiction: Stacey feels the new girl, Tess, in school is in dire need of fashion advice but Tess doesn't seem to agree in Stacey's Secret Friend from Baby-Sitters Club.

When Elizabeth and Jessica housesit at their principal's house, they find a lot of strange things which lead them to believe their principal could be a murderer in Don't Go in the Basement from Sweet Valley Twins.

Just in time for Halloween we have these children's books on tape:

When Tori finds a mysterious notebook containing spells life becomes fun, until the spells turn nasty in Strange Brew by Betsy Haynes.

When a weird new teacher arrives at school shortly after Joey sees a scary black shape emerging from the swamp it seems to be more than a coincidence in Teacher Creature by Betsy Haynes.

Minor Hockey news

By Doug Bassett
Elk Point Minor Hockey

So what happened this week at the Elk Point Minor Hockey meeting? Well, donations are rolling in and the financial statement looks good to start the season. Thanks to the great response from all the businesses, the total donated to date is now at $10,000. Also on the agenda, each team was given the new manager's guidelines. This will pass on more of the responsibilities to the individual teams. This should make the president's and treasurer's jobs a whole lot easier this year. Then there was a rundown of the teams' numbers. With many of them first time players, and close to 20 players registered, there is one very large group of micro novice. This is a good sign for the future of hockey in Elk Point. The novice team is small but now has 12 players. Two medium sized atom teams, and one each good sized peewee and bantam teams. One midget girls team and a very good start to a peewee girls team. For the first time in many years, the only team that Elk Point will not be able to ice is the midget Thunder. The Thunder sweaters have been drycleaned and packed away along with the other equipment and will be locked up in storage for the season. Next year a large group of bantams will move up and the Thunder will roar once more.

The registrations up until Sunday night, including the girls, was sitting at 95 signed. This coming week as usual there will be some more late registrations, but by the first of November they should be coming to an end. This past weekend saw a very good turnout for the annual Kelly Pratt Skills Clinic, with 60 players registered. Coming up this next weekend will be the referee clinic on Saturday and Sunday.

Most of the league play will take off on the first of November, but two Elk Point teams were off to a good start in exhibition play this past weekend. The Bantam Lightning took to the ice in their home opener, Saturday night against Cold Lake, coming out on top 5 - 2. Goals by Curtis Croteau, Dustin Yaremkevich, Scott Swain, newcomer from Dewberry, Luke Hanna, and another newcomer from Edson, Adam Hansen.

The Peewee Blades also took to the ice on Saturday in Bonnyville, coming home with a 8-2 win. Two goals each in this contest by Colton Hoffman and Mark Letestu.
